SCENE I - INTRODUCTION

The curtain opens. Narrators 1 and 2 enter on stage, they wave to each other and look at the audience. An introductory video is played on the screen.

Narrator 1: This is the Earth, our planet. The Earth is full of wonderful things: there are millions of plants...

Narrator 2: There are also lots of animals, invertebrates and vertebrates, from the smallest insects to the bravest lions and tigers.

Narrator 1: And all these living things live together in harmony, being part of the mountains, forests and seas that make our home.

Narrator 2: And above all of it, the most incredible beings: the humans. We can think, learn, invent... and transform our world.
(Narrators 1 and 2 go off the stage. Narrators 3 and 4 enter on stage and continue the presentation.)

Narrator3: Our progress can continue thanks to four powers: Biblotron, the power of reading; Mateminion, the calculus power; Spelliermus, the spelling magic; and AtomiComic, the science power.

Narrator 4: These powers are defended by superheroes. They transmit these powers to the thousands of children around the world.

Narrator3: Let's present these superheroes and see how they work.

Narrator4: In the kingdom of Asgard, the thunder hero Thor also protects the power of Biblotron. He makes sure that all the children develop their reading power.

Freya: Yes, I love this story! Odin is the best...

Tyr: Shhh! Shut up, we want to listen the story!

Thor: Quiet kids! Listen carefully. Once upon a time there was a god who loved stories. His name was Odin. He went from one place to another telling stories to anyone wishing to listen... Who wants to continue?

All the children: (excited, raising their hands) Me, me!

Thor: OK, OK. (handing the book to Freya.) Freya, you can continue.

Freya: Yes! One day Odin arrived to a little village by the sea...
(suddenly, a siren starts to sound)

Thor: Oh no, it's the reading alarm! Somebody is trying to steal the reading habit of kids. I have to stop it! (Thor disappears with a lightning).

The children look at each other and run out of the stage. Narrators 1 and 2 enter on the stage.

SCENE III - MINIONLAND

MateMinion: Good afternoon everybody! Welcome to the Math show!
Today we are training Milly, Billy and Jilly, three brave minions, to spread the Mateminion power all over the world. Please, give them a loud clap! (Clap sound).

Milly: Hello everybody!

Billy: Nice to meet you!

Jilly: How are you?

MateMinion: OK, let's start! How much is 20 plus 13?

Billy:(beep) 33!

MateMinion: That's... correct! Now, how much is 17 minus 6?

Milly:(beep) Mmm... it's 11?

MateMinion: That's... totally correct! Let's continue... how much is 48 plus 15?

Billy: Me! Me! It's 63!

MateMinion: Great! And the last one... how much is 35 minus 10?

Jilly: I know! I know! It's... 25?

MateMinion: Bravo! Now you're ready to... (suddenly, a siren starts to sound) Oh no, some people are starting to have problems with easy calculations... I must go! (He leaves the stage).
